Fingerprinting Requirements for New Hire

A Criminal Justice Fingerprint Inquiry (FP-INQ) is to positively identify the existence or non-existence of any criminal history based on fingerprints. However, these prints will not be kept in the CHRI database and will not produce a State Identification Number (SID).

An Applicant is a fingerprint submission also used to positively identify the existence or non-existence of any criminal history based on fingerprints. These submissions are submitted to the Bureau of Identification (BOI) for criminal justice employment background checks. The difference between these two submissions, is the applicant card will be permanently maintained on the CHRI database and a State Identification Number will be assigned. Remember to use Purpose Code/CJE.

When submitting fingerprints for a new hire, make sure they are being fingerprinted under your agencies ORI and use the applicant submission on the Livescan machine or a manual fingerprint card. Take note or make a copy of the Transaction Control Number (TCN). The TCN can be used to see if your submission went through successfully, errored out, or processed under another type of submission.
