Temporary Dealer Permit

The Secretary of State is now issuing Temporary Dealer Permits. The permits are valid for 90 days and the expiration dates are printed on them. These Temporary Dealer Permits are similar to the Temporary Registration Permits (TRP) except they have the stacked prefix DL.

Trailer dealers will have the stacked DL and the plate number will start with T.

Motorcycle dealers will have a motorcycle size permit, the stacked DL prefix and the plate number will start with M.

These Temporary Dealer Permits will be issued to dealerships year-round to use while their hard plates are being manufactured. The number on the Temporary Dealer Permits and the permanent metal plates will be identical. Dealers are responsible for returning the Temporary Dealer Permits to the Secretary of State, when they receive their metal plates.
